TERM 3 CONCLUDES

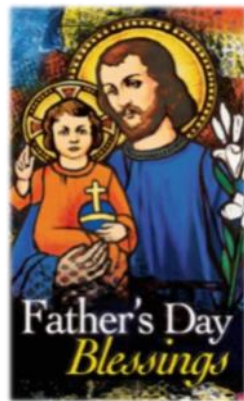

From The Principal

Last night I had the pleasure of attending the opening performance of our play for this year, Lost in a Land Down Under. The occasion was extra special because the play was written, produced and directed by our Drama teacher, Ms Jaymie Blake. With a full house, our students excelled themselves as they brought to life the adventures of a group of people stranded in the Australian outback. A twist in the plot in the last scene saw the play come to an unexpected and hilarious end. Congratulations to Ms Jaymie Blake and the team of teachers who supported the production – Mrs Jade Van Krimpen, Mrs Danielle Slow, Mrs Michele Chapman, Miss Tabitha Frank, Mr John Shield, Mr Tom Grealy and Mr Mervin Wakefield.

This week saw the release of the NAPLAN results – results which are reported on scales demonstrating student performance in comparison to national standards. While there continues to be much debate about the effectiveness of NAPLAN as a tool for measuring student improvement, it does provide us with some data against which we can evaluate our practice and educators. The fact that Chanel was the best performing secondary school in our region in NAPLAN 2019 is confirmation that our focus on continual improvement is being realised in student outcomes. This result is indeed one to celebrate!

This Sunday is Father's Day – an occasion which allows us to honour and thank our fathers for the special part that they play in our lives. We pray this prayer for all fathers,

Lord God, we give our thanks for our fathers. This Father's Day we remember the many sacrifices they have made for us and the ways - both big and small – that they have supported us as we pursue our dreams.

We pray that all fathers will be blessed with the gifts of wisdom, strength, patience and humility in their role as parent. Support them in the special work that they do. Lord, bless our fathers. Amen.

Wishing all Fathers a blessed Fathers Day.

Sincerely,

Dr Susan Bunkum PhD

With 2019 school play showcasing this week, I thought that we would have a look at some of the programs from school plays during the 1970's. Chanel College has always been rich in talent, both on the stage and behind the scenes, and offering the students an opportunity to develop their love of the Arts has always been a greatly anticipated opportunity for those involved.

As you can see, with current technology our programs have changed a lot from the days of these hand drawn ones; but seeing the involvement of so many during the process is truly inspiring.

Year 10 Social

Last Friday night our Year 10 students had a wonderful time at their Social at Yaralla Sports Club. Our students looked amazing and thoroughly enjoyed their special night. They loved the special touches of the lolly bar, the tapas, they had lots of fun with the photo booth, and the endless supply of soft drink. I hope they were all able to get to sleep on Friday night after so much fun and sugar. Many thanks to Ms Jess Ryan for organising this wonderful night for our Year 10 students and Year 10 student Nick Crane for preparing the music play list. The dance floor was packed all night and it was surprising to see them enjoying some of the old favourite songs like Nutbush.

Thank you to the following teachers and staff who supported Ms Ryan on the night– Dr Bunkum, Ms Ord, Ms Jones, Ms Going, Ms Barbagallo, Mr Hayes, Mr Rose, Mr Galea and Mr Hansen.

Blessings,

Mrs Alison Wales

In the new QCE system for senior students, summative internal assessment instruments for all General and General (Extension) subjects and Essential English and Essential Mathematics must be endorsed (approved) by QCAA before they are administered to students.

Last weekend, I had the privilege of being involved in the first Endorsement Event for the new Queensland Certificate of Education system. At this event, the first two items of summative assessment for senior students under the new system of senior schooling were 'assessed' for quality assurance by endorsers of the various senior subjects.

The QCAA believes the benefits of this endorsement are:

Schools and students will be confident that endorsed internal assessment:

- provides a suitable context for learners
- is accessible to learners
- meets subject-specific syllabus requirements for the assessment technique
- provides opportunity to collect valid evidence
- follows accepted assessment conventions
- is comparable across schools.

Kind regards,

Lorraine Wolffe

NATIONAL CHILD PROTECTION WEEK 2019

National Child Protection Week

Sunday 1 September marks the start of National Child Protection Week, coordinated by the National Association for Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect (NAPCAN). The aim of the week is to engage members of the community in supporting families and protecting children. We can help to support and safeguard young people by being active listeners when children communicate with us, ensuring they feel heard and respected. NAPCAN provides the following information on listening to young people.

Understanding young people

Being a teenager or young adult is a challenging time. Young people are trying to make sense of the world around them and find their own place in it. They are becoming more independent and less reliant on their parents. They may seem confident and grown-up on the outside, but they are often very self-conscious, and unsure of themselves inside. Hormonal changes can upset young people's emotional balance and judgement, leading to impulsive and risky behaviour. Science now tells us that a young person's brain isn't fully developed until the late twenties. So, throughout their teenage years, young people still need our support and encouragement. We can give them this by being patient, checking in on how they are going and listening when they want us to.

Why listening is important

Young people need to be able to express their ideas and values without feeling they are being judged. They want to fit in with their friends and may not speak up about how they really feel, especially if this means not going along with risky behaviour, or expressing unpopular views. They may also feel they can't talk to their parents or carers because the adults won't understand. When young people seem stand-offish and dismissive, it's tempting to take it personally, however, this is often just part of 'normal' adolescent behaviour. It's important to be patient, stop what we are doing and listen to them seriously.

How to be a good listener for a young person:

Show interest

Ask open-ended questions that begin with 'How', 'Why' or 'What do you think / feel about...'. This might encourage longer answers than 'Yes' or 'No'.

Show respect

Show respect by listening to young people's ideas thoughtfully and respecting their need for space and time alone. We can feel privileged when a young person shares a problem with us. Offer ideas but help them to come up with their own solutions.

Avoid being bossy

It is tempting to ask a question, then jump in with what we think or want to be the right answer! Offer young people your opinion, guidance and support but also respect their ideas.

Allow for silences

If young people don't reply immediately, just leave the conversation open. They may come back to you later.

Be patient and find the right moment

Notice when a young person is more likely to talk. Suggest going out for coffee to get some one-on-one time together.

Encourage family discussions

Encourage family discussions where everybody's views are invited and respected, however different.

Build in family get-together times

BBQ's, picnics, nature walks or once-a-week family dinners are good opportunities for relaxed talk.

Other adults can help too

If you think your young person has a problem they would rather discuss with another adult, try not to be offended. Ask them who else could help or suggest another adult that both of you respect.

Get to know their friends

Suggest they bring friends home and spend some time chatting with them. Friends are often happy to talk to other people's parents. It might encourage your young person to open up more with you.

Let the young person know you are there

No matter how independent they may seem, young people need to know you are there for them, even if you don't always agree. Remember... Sometimes parents or carers need to over-rule a young person, particularly if it comes to their safety. If you have shown in the past that you respect their opinions, young people will be more likely to accept your decisions on matters needing an adult's judgement.

Get help if you need it

Being a parent or carer of a teenager or young adult can be very confusing. If you are worried your young person has a problem with work, schools, addiction, relationships or cultural issues, seems too withdrawn, or is acting strangely, then speak to a professional. • This day in history....

1883 Krakatoa volcano, west of Java in Indonesia, erupts with a force of 1,300 megatons and kills approximately 40,000 people.

Krakatoa is still active and only last December an eruption on the 22nd of December triggered a tsunami which caused widespread destruction and loss of life in the surrounding islands of Indonesia. Understanding the cause of volcanic activity and the impacts not only on the environment but also human populations has always struck me as an extremely interesting and terrifying part of the study of Geography.

• In the Classroom Year 7 History

Students have been busy learning about the Wonders of the Ancient World. Based on their research they have created a range of models, posters and annotated visual displays. Students had to locate primary and secondary sources to use as evidence for their creations. Students chose from a list of ancient sites including Stonehenge, Angkor Wat, Pompeii, the Terracotta Warriors, The Great Pyramids of Giza and the Colosseum.

Congratulations Years 7s! Your models and visual displays are really amazing!

Business is the Future

Justice Respect Compassion

Everywhere you look and everyone you interact with is affected and involved in business. Just imagine where studying business could take you in your future (BEAQ, 2018)!

Did you know that Australia has over 2 million small business in operation making a significant contribution to the Australia economy (ABS, 2018)? This term the Year 10 Business classes have created and launched a business venture. Each student was provided with $20 start-up capital to assist with his/hers business operation.

Mrs Schneider's business students have launched:

- Blueskys is focusing on promoting young Australian's mental well being through selling face masks and lip scrubs. Any profits will be donated to Roseberry Gladstone.
- The premise of Fueling Focus is to actively encourage the importance of breakfast for the young people in our community. They will be launching an at school breakfast on Thursday 5th September at 7.45am. The beneficiary of their venture is St Vincent De Paul.
- The Boys in Pink aim to raise awareness about the integral part fathers and men play in society. Gender equality is often associated with females not being given equal rights but fathers experience hardships and times of unfairness in society as well. They will be selling a range of goods suitable to acknowledge the men in our daily lives by operating a Father's Day store. All profits gained donated to a charity.
- The Last Straw is raising awareness about the impact plastic straws have on wildlife, in particular Sea Turtles. In this venture, students are selling reusable metal straws in the hope of being able to make a donation to the Sea Turtle Foundation.
- Aqua life is passionate about promoting the importance of life below water. They are selling bath salts and reusable bags made from repurposing preloved shirts. Any profits will be donated to a charity.

All of these businesses are in operation. Although statistics show that a large percentage of businesses fail in their first years of operation, I am confident that with the support of the Chanel College community these business ventures have a good chance of success.

Queensland was on display for Chanel's Tourism students, presenting a simulated

Travel Expo. The regions on display were the Tropical Far North, Mackay, the Whitsundays, the Gold Coast, and Western Queensland. They demonstrated their knowledge of target markets, accommodation styles, transport hubs, features, and all the activities and points of interest each area has to offer.

The students had to present their stalls professionally, as well as find ways of making them stand out from the others.

The students are grateful for the support of their teachers and fellow students for visiting their stalls and asking lots of questions, as well as staff from Flight Centre who made the time to visit the Expo and 'grill' the students. Lots of positive feedback was received on their knowledge, communication skills, and overall presentation.

Congratulations Ethan & Kobi

Ethan Sharp and Kobi Mallie-Roberts have been sharing the podium over the past 5 competitions, with the narrowest of margins between 1st and 2nd position. CQ-Junior Regional Championships Level 6 Kobi came 1st overall, with a total score of 53.750 only just betting Ethan who scored 53.4.

Next month, Ethan and Kobi join Cooper Maitland to represent Gladstone Gymnastics Club as the Level 7 MAG team at this year's National Club Carnival at the Gold Coast and a week later head to Brisbane for the Junior State Championships. Ethan, Kobi and Cooper, train every day except Sundays with a total of 20 hours a week dedicated to their sport.
